

bp making ever more profit...

more than ever, securing the future means deceiving the present

* Beyond Petroleum? BP is working hard to its increase oil and gas production faster than Shell, Exxon, Chevron, Total et al.

* 'BP and Shell have discussed with the government the prospect of claiming a stake in Iraq's oil reserves in the aftermath of war.' Financial Times, 11.3.03.

* Fossil fuel-induced climate chaos hit Europe in August 2003, killing tens of thousands of mostly older people in record-breaking temperatures. 150,000 may have died worldwide.

* 'Exposed: BP, its pipeline, and an environmental time-bomb', Independent (26.6.04) on BP's US-inspired and protected Baku-Tbilisi-Ceyhan oil & gas pipelines, which will be a human rights disaster & produce over 150m tonnes of CO2 each year for 40 years, causing untold damage to the world's climate; baku.org.uk

* 'BP doubles corporate ad budget in $150m bid for greener image', Times, 28.12.05; BP invests 2.6% of its annual budget in solar & other renewable energy sources, much less than it ploughs into advertising and PR like its sponsorship of the Tate, NPG, NHM etc.

* 'Oil gushes into Arctic Ocean from BP pipeline', Ind, 21.3.06

* 'BP slated for 'systemic lapses', FT, 18.8.05; 15 workers were killed and 500 injured in an explosion at BP's Texas City refinery on March 23rd 2005.

* In 2005, as BP workers saw their personal safety, union rights and wages in tatters (www.oilc.org), BP boss Lord Browne's own salary soared to £5.6m...

This leaflet is distributed by London Rising Tide, taking direct action on - and seeking solutions to - the root causes of climate chaos.

Email: london@risingtide.org.uk c/o 62 Fieldgate Street, London E1 1ES
Tel: 07708 794665
londonrisingtide.org.uk
Art Not Oil exhibition, back in London
June 2007: artnotoil.org.uk

See also carbonweb.org and risingtide.org.uk

PS. This information focuses on BP, but they're all it - there's no such thing as a good oil company!

...as the world's climate collapses making ever more profit...

more than ever, securing the future means deceiving the present

* Beyond Petroleum? BP is working hard to its increase oil and gas production faster than Shell, Exxon, Chevron, Total et al.

* 'BP and Shell have discussed with the government the prospect of claiming a stake in Iraq's oil reserves in the aftermath of war.' Financial Times, 11.3.03.

* Fossil fuel-induced climate chaos hit Europe in August 2003, killing tens of thousands of mostly older people in record-breaking temperatures. 150,000 may have died worldwide.

* 'Exposed: BP, its pipeline, and an environmental time-bomb', Independent (26.6.04) on BP's US-inspired and protected Baku-Tbilisi-Ceyhan oil & gas pipelines, which will be a human rights disaster & produce over 150m tonnes of CO2 each year for 40 years, causing untold damage to the world's climate; baku.org.uk

* 'BP doubles corporate ad budget in $150m bid for greener image', Times, 28.12.05; BP invests 2.6% of its annual budget in solar & other renewable energy sources, much less than it ploughs into advertising and PR like its sponsorship of the Tate, NPG, NHM etc.

* 'Oil gushes into Arctic Ocean from BP pipeline', Ind, 21.3.06

* 'BP slated for 'systemic lapses', FT, 18.8.05; 15 workers were killed and 500 injured in an explosion at BP's Texas City refinery on March 23rd 2005.

* In 2005, as BP workers saw their personal safety, union rights and wages in tatters (www.oilc.org), BP boss Lord Browne's own salary soared to £5.6m...

This leaflet is distributed by London Rising Tide, taking direct action on - and seeking solutions to - the root causes of climate chaos.

Email: london@risingtide.org.uk c/o 62 Fieldgate Street, London E1 1ES

Tel: 07708 794665 londonrisingtide.org.uk

Art Not Oil exhibition, back in London June 2007:

artnotoil.org.uk

See also carbonweb.org and risingtide.org.uk

PS. This information focuses on BP, but they're all it - there's no such thing as a good oil company!

...as the world's climate collapses